

Arnold Ridley's classic drama was first produced in 1925 and filmed no less than three times. A very silly man causes a train to make an emergency stop. The six passengers have to spend the night in a cold, drafty waiting room. The legend of a ghost train, which caused many deaths, frightens them, but, despite hearing the weird stories, they stay. However, they soon come to regret their decision, as ghostly apparitions materialise and the true reason behind the night's events is revealed. ENJOY!!
