

This year, a great deal of attention has been focused on the Great War of 1914-1918 and all the horrors involved in that terrible conflict. Tonight's play, however, takes a look at the lives of some of those unbelievably brave bomber crewmen of WW2, between their hair-raising raids over Germany.

Written by Terence Rattigan, who served in the RAF, during WW2, it demonstrates that friendship, relationships, humour and love's complications are still a part of their lives, no matter what is happening all around these flying warriors, in this equally horrific war.
