Remembrance, the Royal British Legion were the Standard Bearers and did the Exhortation. A Roll Call of honour was read and the Last Post played. The crowds fell silent as all reflected on the sacrifices of those soldiers from Clitheroe who did not come home.

A spokesman said: "The organisers would like to thank everyone who supported the project, including Booths for donating the 'Soldiers Chocolate' for the end of the children's trails and Barclays for donating the pens for the trails, plus Clitheroe Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the trails themselves. Thanks to the library for their fascinating displays, Ribble Valley Borough Council for the Town Trail, The Old Post House for sponsoring the images of the Soldiers, Sgt Dave Simpson and PCSO Katie Ferguson for arranging to open the front of the Police Station, The Mayor of Clitheroe Town Council for the use of the Mayor's Parlour, John Lambert for his research and presentation their role in Captain Cook's travels and the link to Clitheroe.

Many shops put on special displays about the history of their trade and the buildings in which they work. Visitors to the town were intrigued with the rich array of old photographs, ledgers and stories from the past. They visited the churches and places of faith across the town.

Many buildings carried the special print of the soldier who represents all soldiers in Clitheroe. Underneath each one was the simple message carrying their name, what they did in the First and Second World Wars and how they died and their age.

At noon, townspeople and visitors alike gathered in the Market Place. The Rev. Andy Froud led a special service of
