

THE most challenging play ever tackled by Waddington Drama Group takes to the stage next Tuesday for a five-night run.

"Absurd Person Singular," an hilarious comedy by contemporary playwright Alan Ayckbourn, proves an ambitious choice for the group because three different sets are required — all kitchens.

Accomplishing the changes on the tiny stage and limited space backstage at St Helen's Sunday School, Waddington, are taking all the ingenuity of set designer Barry Wood and the stage staff.

But with a little bit of luck, as the saying goes, all will turn out right on the night and whatever happens behind the scenes, producer

Barbara Scattergood can promise audiences plenty to laugh about in the antics on stage.

Tickets, in limited quantities, are available from Audrey Cooke (Clitheroe 23089) or Bob Fisher (23022), price 50p.
